WHY ARMOR PLATE IS COSTLY.

The general public has always been mystified at the extremely high price paid for armor plate. According to the Iron and Steel Number of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, the most important item is the great length of time required for the successful manufacture of a plate; for on an average, every plate is being constantly worked upon, either in furnace, forge, machine shop, or annealing and tempering department, for a continuous period of nine months. Other causes of high cost are: the large number of separate operations, the frequency with which the great masses must be transported, and the distances over which they must be carried in their journey from one department to another. To illustrate the vast scale on which an armor plate and gun steel works is laid out and the distances to be covered from shop to shop, we may mention that the whole establishment of the Bethlehem Steel Works extends in one direction continuously for a length of a mile and a quarter, and that the forty or fifty handlings and transshipments, which occur in making a single Krupp plate, take place in and between such buildings as the open-hearth structure, which is 111 feet wide by 1,950 feet in length; the machine shop, 116 1-2 feet in width by 1,375 feet in length; the armor forge, 850 feet in length; and a face hardening department and an armor-plate machine shop, both of which are but little less in size. Further elements of expense are the large percentage of losses which is liable to occur, the first high cost of the extensive plants that must be laid down, and the fact that new and improved methods of manufacture may at any time render the plant more or less obsolete. The greater cost of the Krupp armor is largely compensated for by its much greater resisting qualities, which make it possible to give equal defensive qualities for 20 to 25 per cent of weight of armor.

THERE are other ways of being little besides in size.

THERE won't be any poor folks in this town Christmas, thanks to our godly women.

NEVER you mind, little one, the HERALD will try and get Santa Claus to bring you a circulation Christmas.

DON'T send your Christmas money out of town. Palestine stores can supply any reasonable want, and the prices are right.

THE HERALD will take pleasure in submitting its books to any committee of business men who are interested in the comparative sizes of the local papers' circulations.

PALESTINE is a good old town in which to buy and sell. When you come buying, remember the merchants who advertise for your business. They are liberal men to trade with.

DON'T anybody get an idea that we don't like the Visitor. We do. It's the best thing that could happen for us. Suppose it wasn't here! Somebody would come along and put in another sure enough paper like the HERALD, and there we would be with competition to meet. Little one, don't you ever go away and leave us. You are filling a mighty convenient crack.

PALESTINE cannot do a better service for herself than to put forth such effort as will secure to her that big K. of P. home. Some of our people are thoroughly alive to the importance of this institution, and they should enlist all others in the work necessary to be done.

CALIFORNIA, following the lead of that Texas jury which sentenced a negro to one thousand years in the penitentiary, sentenced a prisoner to a life term, and convicted him of a second term, ordering him to appear in court one hundred years hence, to receive sentence.

THE hog is a good thing in its place, in fact, the hog is conducive to the health of many people, and we confess our liking for it, but the proper place for the hog is in the pen or smoke-house or lot. The hog if allowed to roam about town creates an enormous crop of fleas, to the dissatisfaction and inconvenience of many people.—Oakwoods Call

That's right. And he makes a nuisance of himself in all public places. In a railway passenger car he will insist on putting his feet on the cushioned seats; on the streets he uses profanity and spits on the side walk. The hog is a nuisance anywhere you meet him.
